

Empowering Women: The On-going Struggle of Equal Rights

*Parul Bhargava

Abstract

Women rights have been a subject of great importance and debate throughout history. Despite Significant progress in many parts of the world, women continue to face numerous challenges and Inequalities. This article delves into the current state of women's rights, highlighting both the Through Education Women enhance the quality for improve the quantity of knowledge and Put every steps further to achieve her goals and aware the society by showing the power of women's empowerment. It is great to access that now situation to motivate the entire girl child for education. Women are keys of problems lock, to open with their authentic solution.

Achievements and persistent issues that hinder gender equality. By shedding light on these issues, we can better understand the importance of continued advocacy and empowerment for women.

Introduction:

Historical Struggles for Equal Rights:

The fight for women rights has a long history, dating back to the suffrage movements of the late 19th and early 20th centuries. The right to vote was a significant milestone achieved by women in many countries, marking the beginning of a more inclusive society. Since then, progress has been made in various areas, such as education, employment, and political representation. Women's contributions to society and the economy have become increasingly recognized, leading to a gradual shift in cultural norms.

Challenges in the Modern Era for Equal Rights:

Despite the strides made, gender inequality persists in numerous aspects of life. One of the most pressing issues is violence against women. Globally, millions of women experience physical, sexual, or psychological violence, often perpetrated by intimate partners or family members. Efforts to combat this issue have resulted in legislation, awareness campaigns, and support services, but there is still much work to be done. In the realm of education, progress has been made, but gender disparities persist. In some parts of the world, girls still face limited access to quality education due to factors like poverty, cultural norms, and early marriage. Lack of education perpetuates gender inequality, hindering women social and economic empowerment. The gender pay gap is another significant concern. Women, on average, earn less than men for the same work, and they are often underrepresented in leadership positions. Gender biases and discriminatory practices in the workplace continue to impede women's progress and limit their earning potential.

Political representation is crucial for advancing women's rights. While more women are occupying

Empowering Women: The On-going Struggle for Equal Rights

Parul Bhargava

political offices today, they are still underrepresented compared to men. Women's voices and perspectives must be adequately included in decision-making processes to ensure a more equitable society.

Equal Rights Status In India

"To awaken the people, it is the women who must be awakened. Once she is on the move, the family moves, the village moves, the nation moves." - Pt. Jawaharlal Nehru

To address these on-going challenges, a multi-faceted approach is needed. Governments, civil society organizations, and individuals must work together to create a supportive environment for women's Rights. This includes implementing and enforcing laws that protect women from violence and discrimination, providing accessible education and healthcare, promoting gender equality in the workplace, and encouraging women's political participation. Education plays a vital role in empowering women. Investments in girls education can lead to positive social change by breaking the cycle of poverty and enabling women to actively participate in society. Efforts should focus on removing barriers to education, such as discriminatory practices and lack of resources. Empowering women economically is another essential aspect of achieving gender equality. This involves promoting entrepreneurship, providing access to credit and business training, and challenging traditional gender roles that limit women's economic opportunities. Changing societal attitudes and norms is a long-term endeavour. It requires challenging gender stereotypes and promoting positive role models for both women and men. Engaging men as allies in the fight for women's rights is crucial for achieving lasting change.

Women Empowerment Status In India

According to the Country Report of the Government of India, "Empowerment means moving from a weak position to execute a power. "Education of women in the education of women is the most powerful tool of change of position in society. Education reduces the inequality and increase the status of women in her family and also country where she works.

Education motivate, guide and train in all level for improving and enhancing her qualities. Government is providing various schemes for girls and women in her education like, free schooling, midday meal, hostels, cloth, bicycle, scholarships, train concession etc. Education makes the women not only knowledgeable but very strong and powerful. Empowerment of a girl's starts even enterprise makes empowerment operation. Women have a very in-distinctive position in our economy and are an indispensable part of the society. Yes, education and knowledge empower women. The only way a society or nation can move forward and aspire to economic growth and development is not just through education- but especially education among the women citizens.

Conclusion:

While significant progress has been made in advancing women's rights, challenges persist. It is essential to continue advocating for gender equality, supporting policies that protect women's rights, and empowering women in all spheres of life. By working together, we can create a future where every woman enjoys equal opportunities, freedom from violence, and the ability to fulfil her potential.

Assistant Professor
S.S. Jain Subodh Management Institute
Jaipur (Raj.)

Empowering Women: The On-going Struggle for Equal Rights

Parul Bhargava

Reference:

1. Agrawal, S. and Salve, S. (2013) "Women Empowerment: Need of Women Education. Indian Journal of Education Research Experimentation and innovation (IJEREI).ISSN-2231- 0495.Vol-3.Issue 4.
2. Alva, A and Hans V.B. (2013). "Higher Education in India - Opportunities, Changes and Challenges."
3. Balve S. (2015)."Women Entrepreneurship towards women Empowerment in India: Plan Initiatives and Strategies.
4. Hazarika D, (2011) Women Empowerment in India: A Brief Discussion, International Journal of Educational Planning & Administration. ISSN 2249-3093 Volume 1, Number 3 (2011), pp. 199-202
5. Nayak, Purusottam & Mahanta, Bidisha. (2009). Women Empowerment in India. SSRN Electronic Journal. 10.2139/ssrn.1320071.